The Silicest Piece of Work Done Here in

Diamonds Recovered—No

One of the boldest and most daring series ever perpetrated in Los Angeles was committed last night, when the window of the jewelry store of H. T. Hollingsworth at No. 30 South Spring street, was smashed with a hammer, and an open tray, eight inches in dimensions, and contain-jewels, made away with. What adds to the audacity of the thief is the fact that the store is situated in the most public part of the city, opposite the leading hotel, and that the streets were filled with people at the time. About 2:15 p. m. the

Nicholls, a clerk in the store, was standing behind the counter in the rear of the store when he was suddenly startled by hearing a loud rap on the front window, and, on looking up, saw a man shading his face with his hand, while in the other he held a hammer, which was upraised for a second blow. Nicholls at once rushed to the rear behind the counter and toward

An officer was standing across the street inimed gave chase, and was up the stairs in a time, but the thief had disappeared, le no trace behind him. The robbery was dently carefully planned and the g looked over, as the gate in the back leading into Mott's alley, which had

A TIMES reporter was on the scene shortly after the robbery, and saw Mrs. Terhoff, who, with his wife, occupied rooms on the right-hand side at the top of the stairs up which the thief ran. Doctor said that he was lying down in a lounge, with his door partly open, when he heard three blows, followed by a sound of falling glass, and heard a man come down the stairs. He stepped out into the when his wife, thinking that there was a fight on the street, in which the shadow had been broken, and the man escaping up the stairs, and might attack his husband if opposed, caught hold of him and pulled him back into the room. He saw a man plainly, as the light was so brightly at the time, and he had both eyes up to his face. The Doctor saw no one in the tray. He saw the man dis-once to the place, but could discover no trace of him. His description of the man agrees with that of the clerk, Nicholas Doctor's statement was corroborated by Mrs. Fettehoff, who also plainly saw the man as he rushed through the hall.

Mrs. Hammond, who also lives in the building, says that on Sunday last a man came up the stairs and looked at CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—[By The Associated Press.] A largely attended meeting of Irishmen was held tonight in Central Music Hall in memory of the Irish patriots who yielded up their lives at Manchester, England, twenty years ago, and incidentally of the three who fell before the recent charge of the constabulary at Mitchellstown. Hon. E. Fitzgerald, the orator of the evening, said: "In the nationalism of the Irish is the hope of their race, and as a result of recent events the demand for separating from England is stronger today than ever." He concluded with a declaration that if the British Government resolves upon desperate things, they must expect desperate measures in return.

TURBULENT MEETING IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The twentieth anniversary of the Manchester massacre was celebrated in the large hall of Cooper Institute this evening. The meeting was not altogether harmonious. When Richard C. Caffery denounced those who opposed Henry George in the late election, selecting Patrick Ford for a special denunciation, there were loud protests. Several of those who protested were promptly put out, and a company of the Sixty-ninth Regiment arose and left the place. The confusion lasted several minutes, and while two men were being ejected by citizens and the police, a serious riot was averted. Dr. McMillin raised a mingled storm of hisses and applause when he denounced the treatment to which he had been subjected by the Pope and Archbishop Corrigan.

A RACE WAR.

Blacks and Whites Fighting in Louisiana—Several Killed.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23.—At Thibodaux a white picket guard fired upon this morning and two men were wounded. An attack was immediately made on the negroes, and ten or twelve were killed. The rest of the men fled for the woods. All is quiet now, and the laborers are at work on the plantations. There is no excitement outside of the town.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23.—The Times-Democrat's Thibodaux special says:

The following statement regarding today's tragedy explains itself.

THIBODAUX, Nov. 23.

Our labor troubles, when on Tuesday afternoon the people of this town were reliably informed that an attack would be made upon the town during the night. To prevent any trouble a strong guard of deputy sheriffs was posted at all approaches. At 7 o'clock in the morning two guards were shot from ambush and seriously wounded. Two of their friends rushed to their assistance and while they were attempting to relieve their wounds were themselves shot. They were also fired upon from ambush. Luckily they were not harmed.

THE FIGHT.

A fearful state of excitement arose, and the armed guard of the town rushed to the scene of action. They were again fired upon from ambush, then returned the fire by a general fusillade, which was kept up until the rioters were dispersed. Some of the rioters are known to have been killed and as many more wounded. The people are beginning to feel that the police and all good citizens are in perfect accord. The above facts are gained from a reliable source.

This is signed by Dr. Gov. Knobloch, County Judge Beattie, the Sheriff of Thibodaux and Mayor Moore.

GAS MONOPOLY.

A Chicago Company Buys Off All Its Competitors.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—[By The Associated Press.] When suit to demolish the great local gas trust came up before Judge Tuley this morning attorneys for the plaintiffs moved to have it dismissed at their cost, and the court so ordered. The trust is credited with having bought off all opponents fighting it in court.

The plaintiff in this case was the Hoffman estate of New York city, which owned 400 shares of stock in the Chicago Gas Light and Coke Company. Late yesterday attorneys representing the estate received the following dispatch: "If the estate has made satisfactory arrangement with defendants quash all proceedings before Judge Tuley."

The trust has now a complete monopoly of the gas interests in Chicago.

POLITICAL FEUDS.

The Situation in Indian Territory Becoming Critical.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23.—[By The Associated Press.] The situation at Tahlequah is becoming uneasy. The Downings refuse to meet in council chamber with the Nationals, and show a disposition to filibuster until the thirty days prescribed by law are up, at which time the matter of counting the vote for chief must be referred to the United States authorities. The Downings complain that an armed force of guards is continually kept in the Senate chamber, and insinuate that they are to be used to coerce the Senators, and thereby to keep the day. It is now said an agreement can be had to send the question to the United States Attorney-General, with the Cherokee laws on the subject, and let him decide the matter, as many believe the question must be soon settled to prevent bloodshed.

How a New Papa Handles the Baby.

Everybody has heard of new papa trying to manage his primal offspring in a street-car. The more primal it happens to be the harder it is to manage. If papa is the sort of a man he ought to be his chief endeavor is to prevent his fellow-passengers from getting on to the fact that he is new in the business. He particularly desires to pass for a veteran.

Baby, however, never for a moment overlooks the fact that he is only an infant.

His first move is to turn a somersault off of papa's unaccustomed knees, and stand on his little intellect in the aisle, thus bothering people about getting on and on the car and effectually preventing the sad-eyed conductor from collecting fares. Then, when papa dares to disagree with this original and startling flight of fancy and move the previous question, the delights of baby farming suddenly materialize and become distinctly visible to the naked eye.

With an intellectual whoop that caused the sad-looking passengers on the rear platform to throw the cigar from between his lips, baby throws itself flat on its back, on papa's knees, and shoots out like a telescope. Its dear little head plays the great battering-ram act on a dyspeptic-looking passenger on papa's right, and its cute little toes get all tangled up in the real plate lace worn by a supercilious young lady on papa's left. Its darling little hands are, of course, tangled up in papa's whiskers. And all the time baby is wailing a high and heartless air from the latest opera.

Of course, every eye in the car is fixed upon papa, and he suddenly becomes aware of the fact that he is making history.

By the time the little darling has kicked $100 worth of lace off the aristocratic dress, and loosened most of the digestive apparatus of the victim of dyspepsia, papa has succeeded in once again holding up the thread of the argument.

He seems to hesitate between tossing his burden out of the car window and stuffing it under the seat. His face is as stiff as the color of a healthy lobster, and a wild yearning to go off some where and die and become a glorious care-free angel has laid violent hands on him. But through it all he never for a moment loses sight of the fact that he is a parent.

The baby won't let him.

At last he rises in a broken-hearted way, stumbles over the feet of everybody in the car, and in sheer desperation, stops the car and conducts the remainder of his kindergarten on foot. But through it all he is, of course, deliriously happy.

He certainly looks it.

Does This Mean G. Hamilton Griffin?

(Chicago Tribune.)

Every agent is trying to sell every lot, and the man who makes the sales at the price fixed by the owner, takes in the commission of 5 per cent. on the first thousand, 24 on each subsequent thousand. At this rate the agent who makes a sale of a $3000 lot gets $150; and all the capital needed to go into business is an office large enough for a map and a chair, a handful of cards, a table of the city, a plug hat and a bushel of "gall."

A. L. TEELE,
By giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely
as soon as a child becomes hoarse it will prevent the croup, which can always be done if least danger in giving it. Sold by C. H. Hance,
